REMEMBRANCE KYLE DAMON DERRICK

KYLE DAMON DERRICK died on February 20, 2017, from complications related to a twenty-year battle with a traumatic brain injury. He was 42. Born in San Antonio, Texas, on August 9, 1974, Kyle is the son of Bill and Laura Derrick of Sierra Madre, California.

God, get ready: Here comes Kyle! He is one of the greatest fighters, fishermen, and friends we have ever known here on Earth. Kyle was lost for a second time on February 20, but there is a comfort knowing that he now rests in peace with you at his side.

Kyle was so full of life, wild and free, and a friend to all. He lived to the fullest, owned a motorcycle shop, camped, fished, traveled, and ALWAYS put family and friends first. Prior to his injury, and during his battle with its aftermath, he developed a close-knit following of friends that stayed connected to him throughout the years. Friends from Europe and across the United States continued to support Kyle in his efforts to recover.

His whole life, Kyle was a unifying force—he connected us all. Even though he was unable to speak after his injury, Kyle taught all that he met the meaning of love and to have a keen appreciation for life. He also taught patience, to never give up, and to fight until the end. Many that followed him witnessed true angles caring for him daily.

Kyle's inspiration has had a global impact. "Awaking Dreams", was created in his name to use adventure as a means to draw attention to traumatic brain injury research and support organizations. Awaking Dreams, which has organized an Appalachian thru-hike and a canoe descent of the entire Connecticut River, has raised tens of thousands of dollars for the National Brain Injury Association, Casa Colina Rehabilitation Hospital, and others.

On the day he departed, with his family by his side, his loved ones quietly told Kyle that although he would be missed beyond words, he could take a break from his long battle. Now he is with you, God.

Kyle is survived by his parents Bill and Laura Derrick, his sisters Jamie Malone, Brooke Derrick and Casey Derrick Neuman, and his brother-in-laws Chris Malone, Daniel McGlynn, and Patrick Neuman. He leaves his grandmother, Linda Fisher of Dallas, Texas, six nieces and three nephews, and countless close friends that visited him regularly over the past 20 years including: Miguel, Matthias, and

If he could speak, he would tell us all to go have a beer and celebrate with family and friends what was an amazing ride, and an amazing life! Kyle will be missed here on Earth—you are lucky to have him by your side.

Kyle's private funeral services will be held in Dallas, Texas, at Laurel Land Funeral Home. A memorial service will be held for friends and family at Church of the Good Shepherd in Arcadia, California, on March 25, at 2 pm. In lieu of flowers, Kyle's family asks that you consider a donation to the National Brain Injury Association.

The riveting true story of the women who launched America into space.

"In the 1940s and 50s, when the newly minted Jet Propulsion Laboratory needed quick-thinking mathematicians to calculate velocities and plot trajectories ... they recruited an elite group of young women who, with only pencil, paper, and mathematical prowes transformed rocket design, helped bring about the first American satellites, and made the exploration of the solar system possible."

It's President's Day today and we have not walked Sierra Madre for a week! The city council is set to enter into a contract Monday night with Metro for the Countywide Bike Share program to install 34 bike stations throughout the city.

The locations include Huntington Hospital, Pasadena Central Library, Rose Bowl, Caltech, and many other surrounding streets including Lake Ave, Raymond Ave, Allen Ave, Hill Ave. and Green Street among others. Absent from the list are streets to the extreme north and south of the city, such as Washington Blvd. or Glenarm Street. There are also no stations proposed east of Allen Ave.

Staff said the locations were picked by factors such as housing density, population density, employment density, intersection density, zero car households, transit frequency and transit ridership.

According to a city staff report other factors included "an evaluation of potential revenue from each bike share station location and potential effect on operational rebalancing efforts that move bikes around to match demand and to ensure that the appropriate number of bikes and open docks are available at all stations."

There was also an internetbased crowdsourcing map to directly collect suggested locations and to chart likes and dislikes. Crowdsourcing areas of high marks included the Civic Center, Old Pasadena, Playhouse District, South Lake areas around Caltech and Pasadena City College.

The bikes will available for 30-minute rides and fees depend on single rides, monthly or annual flex passes.

A TAP card and credit card are both needed to rent the bikes. More info at bikeshare. metro.net. The city council meets Monday night at 6:30 p.m. at City Hall 100 North Garfield Avenue, Room S249.

Tree Care after Recent Storms

Pasadena residents are reminded that they should use only licensed contractors and certified arborists when facing the challenge of a fallen or severely leaning tree. Residents also are reminded to report any storm damage that they have experienced to the County of Los Angeles.

During the recent series of storms, the City received reports of 21 trees that fell throughout Pasadena. Of those, 10 were City-owned trees from Pasadena's Urban Forest inventory of more than 60,000 trees. The rest were privately owned trees on private property.

City trees are generally located in the center medians or in the parkway strip areas along streets in the space between the sidewalk and the roadway. When in doubt, call the Pasadena Citizen Service Center at (626) 744-7311.

City officials urge the public to only use a currently licensed and insured contractor for any work at their property, including the emergency removal of a downed tree.

The City recommends using a certified arborist to help determine the health and status of your trees. The cycle of drought and now abundant rain can put stress on trees that may otherwise look healthy.

If a privately owned tree has fallen on private property, the owner is responsible for its removal. No tree removal permit is required from the city if the tree has already fallen. If the fallen tree is a lifethreatening emergency, or has damaged structures and/or utilities, call 9-1-1. Otherwise please notify the City via the Citizen Service Center of your non-emergency tree situation. Got storm damage? Make sure Los Angeles County officials know! To complete a damage assessment survey go to www.211LA.org and click on the link for Damage Assessment Survey. At this website, residents can also find up-to-date weather info, road closures and emergency preparedness tips.

"Spitzer will follow up in the fall to further refine our understanding of these planets so that the James Webb Space Telescope can follow up. According to the announcement, the discovery sets a new record for greatest number of habitable-zone planets found around a single star outside our solar system. All of these seven planets could have liquid water -- key to life as we know it -- under the right atmospheric conditions, but the chances are highest with the three in the habitable zone.

MEASURE A - ARCADIA TEACHER AND ACADEMIC INSTRUCTION PROTECTION MEASURE.

To keep Arcadia schools among the best in California by renewing approximately $4.3 million in annual local funding the state cannot take away, shall Arcadia Unified School District continue attracting/retaining quality teachers; keeping schools safe/clean; protecting quality math, science, technology, reading, writing, art and music programs by extending the expiring school parcel tax at $288 per parcel annually for 18 years, requiring independent oversight/audits, senior exemptions, and all funds used locally to maintain quality education?

BUDGET UPDATE AND MEASURE A INFORMATION FROM DR. VANNASDALL, AUSD SUPERINTENDENT

As you may know, funding for public education in California ranks among the lowest in the nation. Governor As you may know, funding for public education in California ranks among the lowest in the nation. Governor Brown's recent state budget projections have California running at a $1.6 billion deficit by next summer. A recent L.A. Times article shed light on what this will mean for public education: "Brown proposed to address the deficit primarily by slowing the growth in spending on public schools by $1.7 billion, a change that brings funding down to the minimum required by formulas enshrined in California's Constitution."

This change in the budget equates to Arcadia Unified receiving an estimated $2 million less than what was originally projected. As the Board of Education's recent resolution noted, the need for locally controlled funding led the Board of Education to place Measure A on the March 7, 2017 ballot. To continue to provide an excellent education for our children, our District can't rely on inconsistent budgets and funding from Sacramento.

Measure A has and would be used to fund the following: Retaining and attracting hish-quality teachers Measure A has and would be used to fund the following: Retaining and attracting high-quality teachers. Maintaining advanced placement and honors courses. Protecting quality music, art, math, science, and reading programs and Keeping our schools safe and clean.

Measure A is a parcel tax that was initially approved by voters in 2012 and has provided approximately $3.4 million a year that goes directly to our schools. To continue this local funding that is set to expire at the end of the year, our Board of Education has placed Measure A on the March 7, 2017 ballot. The proposed renewal of Measure A will last 18 years at a rate of $288 per parcel.

In addition to being in one of the lowest funded states for public education, because of the Local Control Funding Formula (LCFF) in California, our district is among the lowest funded school districts in L.A. County (see chart above). The LCFF directs more funds to school districts with higher percentages of low-income families, English Language Learners, and foster youth. All the districts listed below us in funding also receive parcel tax funding (see figures below) like we currently do.

Arcadia ranks among the lowest funded school districts in LA County

While our District's funding in California and locally has been inadequate for years, I am very proud of all of you and what we have accomplished together as a staff and community. Despite the recession, and unstable funding, thanks to you we have still maintained a level of excellence in public education unlike any other district in the nation. Our students are matriculating to the best universities in the world year after year, our performing arts programs continue to march on in front of international audiences, and every day our children are growing, learning, and engaging as they prepare for college and the real world that awaits them. I want to sincerely thank all of you for your work over the years. Our reputation for excellence is a direct result of an exceptional staff working in a remarkable community.

KEEPIN' IT LIGHT AT NIGHT

light is somewhat harder to come by, it can be a challenge to work in a walk with the dog before dark. This is particularly true for those folks who have a regimen of leaving the house at the crack of dawn to embark on that commute that will, hopefully get them to work on time. Then there are those who prefer an evening walk but for whatever reason, can't get it done before dark.

I'm happy to say that I don't have to embark on a long journey to get to work, because the pets I get to spend time with are all here in town where I live. But I will say that when I do have to drive during the wee hours of the morning before sunrise, or in the evening after sundown, there have been many occasions when I've been caught off guard by been many occasions when I've been caught off-guard by pedestrians attempting to use a cross-walk to get from one side of the street to another.

There have even been times when I've failed to see pedestrians along the street until I've passed by and noticed a dark form in my peripheral vision. It always concerns me, in retrospect, that a person could be walking so close to my moving vehicle or standing there trying to cross the street, waiting for me to stop and I didn't even see them.

I try to be vigilant and cautious while driving in the dark, and while driving in the light of day for that matter, but even still those early morning and evening walkers can be quite elusive. It is especially concerning to see people walking their dogs in the dark without reflective or lighted devices to help illuminate their presence to unwitting motorists such as

Actually, I think both motorists and pedestrians could try a little harder to ensure that walking along a darkened street is a safe activity for all involved. And considering the inherent risks associated with embarking on a dark outing with one's beloved little wiggle-waggler, a wise walker will be prepared with the proper gear to steer clear of any potential obstruction - not the least of which is a moving vehicle.

Fortunately for us evening and early morning dog walkers, there are a number of devices specifically designed to keep it light at night for a safer walk around the block. With visibility enhancers, reflective vests, arm cuffs, glowing collars, flashing lights and day-glo coats now available on the shopping shelves there is, no doubt, something for everyone!

Remember, a vital key to a safe walk in the dark is ensuring that you and your pet are overtly obvious to passing motorists and what better way to make yourselves obvious than for both of you to wear lighted and/or reflective gear? Indeed it is a must for a safe walk in the dark. But common sense says lighting up isn't the only way to stay safe on a night excursion. There are a few additional safety precautions that one should take if they wish to walk safely in the dark.

Be a vigilant pedestrian on behalf of yourself and your dog. Don't walk down the middle of the street, even if you think you are safe because you don't see headlights. There are too many motorists who speed at night when they think they can get away with it. You may not see headlights at the moment, but it only takes a second for a speeder to blow through a stop sign at a cross street and spin around the corner heading in your direction.

And, as we Sierra Madreans all know very well, we are not alone in this small mountain side village. We share our living space with a variety of other creatures who

During the months of daylight savings time, when the sun may or may not be passive observers of our presence on the streets. During the six years that I have been in the business of walking dogs, I have seen at least one of every kind of furry four-legger you can imagine while I am out and about with my four-legged buds, both in the light of day and in the dark.

I've seen coyotes, bears, big cats, skunks, opossum and deer lurking about in our town on any given day, and while they may tend to stay away from us passers by, we don't always know how our beloved canines may react to seeing them suddenly appear on our path.

I like to be prepared for such a surprise encounter whenever possible. One way to help prevent a mishap with a wild animal is to maintain a strong hold on your dog's leash at all times. This is not to say that I keep a tight rein on their collar at all

It just means that I am conscious of keeping a firm grip on the leash. I hold the loop end of the leash in one hand and I keep a tight hold on the leash about half way down, to ensure that one hand or the other will catch the leash in good time before the dog is too far out my reach.

Some pups are pretty passive when it comes to meeting up with other animals on the street, while others tend to me a bit more aggressive. This may be due to having been startled by the presence of an unknown animal, or simply because they are acting on their own instincts to protect you from the other creature. For whatever reason, it is very important to prevent that close encounter for the safety of your pet and yourself.

There are also other devices to help ensure a safe walk with your dog, whether it be during the light of day or after dark. There are air-blowers that make a loud noise to scare a wild beast away and some folks use whistles for this purpose as well. And while I personally don't use it, there is also pepper spray available to force a would-be wild attacker to back off.

Safety preparedness is a smart way to start a walk with a dog, and the tips mentioned here are certainly attainable means of being prepared. Ultimately, however, it is my opinion that the most clear and present danger one might face during an after-dark walk in Sierra Madre is the potential to not be seen by a passing motorist.

For this reason, I highly recommend a stop at the local pet shop, or a visit to one of the many pet supply web sites on line, to find the right light and reflective device(s) for yourself and your pet to wear on your walk. Better safe than sorry! It only takes one time for the kind of injury that can occur when a fast moving vehicle inadvertently comes into contact with a fragile body, be it a two- or four-legged one. Be safe, keep it light at night, love and let live!

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND

Kermit is a four-year old "Red" or "Irish Red" Staffordshire terrier mix with great looks and a fun loving personality that is just as silly as the other famous Kermit. He has a beautiful butterscotchcolored coat with white patches on his chest and paws and a big smile that is literally from ear to ear.

Kermit came to the shelter after officers from the San Gabriel Police Department found him tied to a fire hydrant. It is unknown how long he had been tied and abandoned in such manner but we are glad that he was first found by the officers who in turn brought him to the shelter.

Despite being abandoned this way he still trusts and loves people. He does well on the leash, responds well to commands, and has been known at the shelter for being a "leaner" dog. This means that he really enjoys walking next to his human very closely, as if he's leaning on him or her.

If you are looking for a loving dog who's looking for someone to lean on; please come on by and meet Kermit the dog! ### THE JOY OF YOGA MIND-BODY CONNECTION our yoga practice is always about establishing and re-establishing the mind-body connection.

connection is so deep, so continuous and completely interdependent. All of our experiences--birth until present moment-- are held, absorbed and "seated" in the body, down to the cellular level. Think of the amount of experiences that take place between the hips, for example. Creation of life happens here, emotions are held here. Our backs often carry our burdens, hence the pain in the lower back. Our lungs and breath are affected when we're anxious, scared or repressing our feelings. Sickness can evolve when our feelings haven't been expressed fully or in a healthy way. You can imagine that the way we think affects our practice. Come see us at Yoga Madre! body, and our body affects the way we think.

Thus, our yoga practice can bring stuff up and release Namaste, emotions. It also can facilitate healing. Step one to Keely Totten healing and letting go is to become aware of what's Teaching @ YOGA MADRE going on with the body. Step two is to notice the mind's reaction to this stirring of emotions or resistance. In our practice, we want to cultivate what's called, Adhikara, or a sensitivity to our awareness of the subtle body. It also means being "spiritually ready" for self-study. We peer back to the observer point of view, just noticing what's easy or hard. What's the condition of the breath? Does the mind want to check out? What's our reaction to what's taking place?

Practicing awareness, deepening our sensitivity to what's going on internally, and paying attention to the body can help us when we're not practicing yoga. We may notice the same resistance in other situations. Ultimately, the fruits of this work will be a pause in our reaction time and a present-moment oriented mind. And there is nothing unmanageable in the present moment. Let's explore this mind-body connection through

I'm going to answer Al's question. First, be gentle with yourself. Be kind, is the first rule of relationships, it is a good rule for how to relate to yourself as well. Remember, no one can care for you or treat you any better that you demand of yourself. As you reflect on the place you are, speak only words of loving kindness to yourself. Consider what you might say to your little sister dealing with heartbreak and say that to yourself. Be your own big sister. This is part of that rich soil. One of the most common questions that I get as a restaurant advocate/food Influencer (fancy name for critic on line) is where is my favorite steakhouse? The Answer: My house, nothing beats heading over to Pavilions or Howie's for a filet and bbq'n at home. Wine by the glass another story. At a restaurant that can be a very tricky situation. To this, I say "buyer beware" from the get-go. Wine by the glass can provide a huge revenue stream for your favorite restaurant. In fairness to the restaurant (and before you start calculating how much the restaurant is paying for a bottle of wine and charging for a glass), let's remember that there is often some waste once a bottle is opened. For instance, sparkling wine can't last for more then 24 hours once opened. I have sent back many an old wine back and asked for a fresh bottle, and to my surprise, without much resistance. Local sommelier and wine geek Russ Meek tells me that even reds and whites, once opened, can easily lose their luster after just a few days. My advice is to ask the server/bartender to open a "fresh" bottle - it will make you feel a whole lot better about paying that premium price.

Chardonnay is the best selling wine by the glass here in California, and one that stands out to me is Rambuer Chardonnay. Hailing from the grape-rich area of Napa Valley, this higher end chardonnay satisfies those of us who like a bit of buttery and oaky chardonnay. I found this gem at one of my favorite non-home restaurants, Taylor's Steak House in La Canada. Taylor's has consistently offered a very good wine by the glass program; they aren't giving it away, but you won't feel like you've been gypped. Rombauer Chardonnay is light gold in color, well balanced, and the finish is crisp and clean. Some of my wine snob friends have called it "overrated" but I don't agree. This is a fantastic special occasion wine or a treat at a medium to higher end restaurants. The supply is ample, and you should have no problem finding it at your local market. ALC Content 14.4%

Dining With Dills

5pm Saturdays

- 1. 1/2 cup sugar 2. 1/4 cup water
- 3. 1 tablespoon unsweetened cocoa powder
- 4. 1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla extract

1. MAKE THE GLAZE Preheat the oven to 350°. Butter and flour an 8-cup Bundt pan. In a small bowl, mix the chopped coconut with the condensed milk and egg white. Transfer the coconut mixture to a large sheet of plastic wrap. Using your hands, roll the coconut into an 18-inch rope. Wrap and refrigerate until slightly firm, at least 20 minutes.

6. In another small bowl, sift the flour with the cocoa, baking powder, baking soda and salt. In a large bowl, using an electric mixer, beat the butter until creamy. Add the sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add the eggs, 1 at a time, beating well after each addition. Add the melted chocolate and the vanilla and beat until the batter is smooth. Beat in the dry ingredients in 3 batches, alternating with the yogurt.

7. Scrape the batter into the prepared pan and smooth the surface. Unwrap the coconut rope and join the ends to form a circle. Lay the coconut rope on the cake batter, centering it in the pan. Press the coconut into the batter until it is submerged in 1 inch of batter. Bake the cake for 1 hour, or until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean. Let cool in the pan for 10 minutes, then invert onto a rack to cool completely.

8. In a medium saucepan, combine the sugar and water and bring to a boil; stir to dissolve the sugar. Whisk in the cocoa and vanilla and let cool. Brush a thin layer of the glaze over the cake and let dry slightly. Repeat 3 more times, letting the glaze dry slightly before brushing the cake again. Refrigerate until the glaze is set and slightly cracked before serving.

THE GOOD LIFE

CHOOSING THE BEST ASSISTED LIVING FACILITY

Dear Savvy Senior,

What tips can you offer for choosing a quality assisted living facility for my mom? Her health and mental abilities have declined to the point that she can't live alone anymore but isn't ready for a nursing home either.

Looking Around

Dear Looking,

If your mom needs some assistance with daily living activities like bathing or getting dressed, managing her medications, preparing meals, housekeeping, laundry or just getting around, an assisted living facility is definitely a good option to consider.

Assisted living facilities are residential communities that offer different levels of health or personal care services for seniors who want or need help with daily

There are around 40,000 assisted living facilities (also called board and care, supportive-care or residential-care facilities) in the U.S. today, some of which are part of a retirement community or nursing home. Most facilities have between 25 and 125 suites, varying in size from a single room to a full apartment. And some even offer special memory care units for residents with dementia. Here are some steps you can take to help you choose a good facility.

Make a list: There are several sources you can turn to for referrals to assisted living facilities in your area including your Area Agency on Aging (call 800-677-1116 to get your local number), family doctors or local senior centers, or online search services like Caring.

Call your ombudsman: This is a government official who investigates long-term care facility complaints and advocates for residents and their families. This person can help you find the latest health inspection reports on specific assisted living facilities, and can tell you which ones have had complaints or other problems. To find your local ombudsman, visit LTCombudsman.org.

Call the facilities: Once you've narrowed your search, call the facilities you're interested in to find out if they have any vacancies, what they charge and if they provide the types of services your mother needs.

Tour your top choices: During your visit, notice the cleanness and smell of the facility. Is it homey and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

inviting? Does the staff seem responsive and kind to its residents? Also be sure to taste the food, and talk to the residents and their family members, if available It's also a good idea to visit several times at different times of the day and different days of the week to get a broader perspective.

On your visit, get a copy of the admissions contract and the residence rules that outline the facilities fees, services, and residents' rights, and explains when a resident might be asked to leave because their condition has worsened and they require more care than the facility can provide.

Also find out about staff screening and training procedures, and what percentage of their staff leaves each year. Less than 30 percent annually is considered good. More than 50 percent is a red flag. To help you rate your visit, Caring.com offers a checklist of questions that you can download and print at Caring. com/static/checklist-AL-tour.pdf.

Paying for care: Monthly costs for assisted living ranges anywhere from $2,500 to $5,000 or more depending on where you live, the facility you choose and the services provided. Since Medicare does not cover assisted living, most residents pay out-of-pocket from their own personal funds, and some have long term care insurance policies.

If your mom is lower-income and can't afford this there are many states that now have Medicaid waver programs that help pay for assisted living. Or, if she's a veteran, spouse or surviving spouse of a vet, she may be able to get funds through the VA's Aid and Attendance benefit. To find out about these programs ask the assisted living facility director, or contact her local Medicaid office (see Medicaid.gov) or regiona VA office (800-827-1000).

SEVEN HABITABLE-ZONE PLANETS FOUND AROUND SINGLE STAR

NASA's Spitzer Space Telescope has revealed the first known system of seven Earth-size planets around a single star. Three of these planets are located in the habitable zone, the area around the parent star where a rocky planet is most likely to have liquid water.

The discovery sets a new record for greatest number of habitable-zone planets found around a single star outside our solar system. All of these seven planets could have liquid water—key to life as we know it—under the right atmospheric

"This discovery could be a significant piece in the puzzle of finding habitable environments, places that are conducive to life," said Thomas Zurbuchen, associate administrator of the agency's Science Mission Directorate in Washington. "Answering the question 'are we alone' is a top science priority and finding so many planets like these for the first time in the habitable zone is a remarkable step forward toward that goal."

At about 40 light-years (235 trillion miles) from Earth, the system of planets is relatively close to us, in the constellation Aquarius.

Using Spitzer data, the team precisely measured the sizes of the seven planets and developed first estimates of the masses of six of them, allowing their density to be estimated.

Based on their densities, all of the TRAPPIST-1 planets are likely to be rocky. Further observations will not only help determine whether they are rich in water, but also possibly reveal whether any could have liquid water on their surfaces. The mass of the seventh and farthest exoplanet has not yet been estimated—scientists believe it could be an icy, "snowball-like" world, but further observations are needed.

In contrast to our sun, the TRAPPIST-1 star classified as an ultra-cool dwarf—is so cool that liquid water could survive on planets orbiting very close to it, closer than is possible on planets in our solar system. All seven of the TRAPPIST-1 planetary orbits are closer to their host star than Mercury is to our sun. The planets also are very close to each other. If you were standing on one of the planet's surface, you could gaze up and potentially see geological features or clouds of appear larger than the moon in Earth's sky.

The planets may also be tidally locked to their star, which means the same side of the planet is always facing the star, therefore each side is either perpetual day or night. This could mean they have weather patterns totally unlike those on Earth, such as strong winds blowing from the day side to the night side, and extreme temperature changes.

Spitzer, an infrared telescope that trails Earth neighboring worlds, which would sometimes as it orbits the sun, was well-suited for studying mission," which began after the spacecraft's coolant TRAPPIST-1 because the star glows brightest in ran out (as planned) after the first five years of infrared light, whose wavelengths are longer than the eye can see. In the fall of 2016, Spitzer observed TRAPPIST-1 nearly continuously for 500 hours. Spitzer is uniquely positioned in its orbit to observe enough transits of the planets in front of at Caltech. the host star to reveal the complex architecture of the system. Engineers optimized Spitzer's ability to observe transiting planets during Spitzer's "warm MtnViewsNews.com.

This is the most exciting result I have seen in the 14 years of Spitzer operations," said Sean Carey, manager of NASA's Spitzer Science Center

My friend and I were checking out at a small grocery store. The clerk was on her cell phone, an obviously personal call, and yet she managed to check each item with mechanical efficiency. She smiled towards us, without actually looking at u s. She spoke the price, I handed her some bills, and she returned the correct change. The groceries

I was a bit nonplussed, even though this scene has become way too normal. To speak on a cell phone to someone else while handling a paying customer is the antithesis of service. My friend told me I was making a big deal out of nothing.

Besides, I do that all the time at my office and home," she smiled. "Multi-tasking."

"Really?" I responded. "So that's your fancy word for doing two things at the same time and doing them both poorly?"

"But that clerk didn't do her job poorly, " my friend protested. "You got the correct change, right?" 'Yes, I got the correct change but that's not the point. Let's just say that if she were my employee, she'd get one warning and then I'd fire her. "But that was a small store," my friend said. "How do you know that she wasn't the boss?"

"I don't know that," I said, trying to explain why I felt that we'd just had less than an ideal interaction. Perhaps it was because the clerk's mind was elsewhere, and that I believe you really cannot do two things simultaneously, and do them each well, which is why it is illegal to talk on a cell phone and drive. I asked my friend to explain what sort of "multi-tasking" does at work.

"You know, usual," she responded. described variety of tasks such as paperwork, letters, taking phone calls, reading e-mails. "If you don't give a task your full attention, do you think the task suffers?" I asked.

She thought about "Not really," she said. "As long as I do an adequate job, there's no

"But what if you are talking face-to-face to someone and you're still typing or shuffling papers. Don't you feel that the person will feel slighted?" I asked.

"Well, I suppose it depends on the person," she responded.

I dropped the subject for fear that if I pushed my point further, a friend would soon be a former

I'm not a big fan of so-called "multi-tasking." I think it's a somewhat fraudulent, self-deceptive concept where you believe you're doing more than you actually can do. It's a belief that by moving a lot of stuff around, that your quantity is more important than quality. This is probably one of the reasons why the quality of goods and services has declined.

In a similar vein, today there are many multi-purpose tools now on the market, such as a tool which promises to be a hammer, a screwdriver, a saw, a shovel, a can opener and pliers. Such tools do about 40 tasks poorly and none well.

I do believe that Swiss Army knives pack a lot of quality into a little package, though they cannot handle big jobs. The Leatherman tool is also generally a good combination tool because it is well

But as a rule of thumb, the more tasks a tool claims, the more poorly it performs. And, generally, as the price lowers, so does the performance and longevity of the tool.

In my world view, it is better to have just a few quality tools that a tool box full of cheap tools that mostly result in frustration.

My friend reminded me that the benefit of her "multi-tasking" is that she gets more done at a lower cost, more quickly. I had to think about what that means.

Yes, true quality - in a service or in a product - takes more time and costs more. And because most of us want it now and want it cheap, we've created a frustrating world of low quality service and goods. Change will only come slowly, when enough of us realize that fast and cheap is just a quick thrill with no lasting satisfaction.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

WHERE IN THE WORLD DOES TIME GO?

I remember my grandfather telling me that the older you get the faster time flies. Laughing at him at the time I thought it was another of his little stories he loved telling. Just the other day I caught myself telling one of my grandchildren, "The older you get the faster time flies." Then it occurred to me. I am my grandfather. I am not sure how I got here, but here I am. It is hard keeping up with things, especially when time ticks by so fast. Just when you think you are all caught up, you realize you have to start it all over again. I was complaining about this the other day to the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. Normally, I try not to do any complaining in her presence. She has the ability of turning my complaint upside down and confusing me to the extent that I have no idea what I am complaining about.

In my complaint I said, "Where does time go?"

"Where," my wife said rather sarcastically, "do you want time to go?"

I had to stop and think about that one. In fact, I am still trying to think about that one. To be rather honest, I do not know where I want time to go. The only thing I do know is, I do not want it to go by so fast. Why can't time slow down just a little bit, especially as I get older.

In my confused state of mind my wife said, "Would you do me a favor and go to the grocery store and pick up some items? I just don't have enough time to do it myself."

Whenever my wife asked me to do her a "favor," I believe there should be some kind of a recompense for my time. After all, my time is valuable, at least to me it is.

So, I said, "Would you mind..." and my wife interrupted, "Yes, I would, just get what is on the list. I need it tonight."

Being of a husband mentality, all I really heard her say was "yes."

As I was headed out the door, I heard her say, "And hurry, I need that stuff for this evening." I looked at the list and there were about 12 items she wanted me to get at the grocery store.

Because time was of the essence, I tried to hurry us much as I could. In Pennsylvania we have an old saying that says, "The hurrier I go the behinder I get." Believe me, much of my life has been in the behinder category.

Before starting out, I glanced at the list to make sure I knew what she wanted. I got to the grocery store, parked my vehicle and then went in and got a shopping cart and started my journey of shopping. Which I really, really hate. Shopping is not a favorite thing of mine.

Starting up the first aisle, I grabbed for the shopping list to see what my first item would be. I checked my shirt pocket, no shopping list. I searched all of my pockets and much to my chagrin, no shopping I may have left it in my vehicle, but since time was of the essence, I did not have time to go back to try to look for it. I thought I could do everything from memory. After all, I do not use my memory that often so I should be in good standing. I threw about six items in the shopping cart and then looked at my watch. I was running out of time.

Time goes so quickly when you are trying to remember something, especially your wife's shopping list. Knowing there were around 12 items on the shopping list I sank into panic mode. What were those other six items? For the life of me, I could not remember.

I did have an option I thought about. I could call my wife on my cell phone and ask her to text me the list. Then, I would be in trouble because I would not have enough time to call her and then get the items and get home in time.

I tried to put in things I thought were on the list, but it was getting late. Time was running out.

Then I did something I would later regret. Headed towards the checkout line, I passed the bakery where they had Apple fritters on sale. Without even stopping, because time was getting away from me, I grabbed two apple fritters and threw them in the shopping cart. Why I did that, who knows.

When I brought all the items from the grocery store and put them on the kitchen table, my wife looked them over and informed me that I only got two items on her list. "Why didn't you get the rest of the items?"

All I could say was, "I'm sorry, time got away from me." Believe me when I say, that will be the last time I use that excuse. I could not help but think of a verse of Scripture. "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven" (Ecclesiastes 3:1).

Everybody has the same amount of time; it's how you use that time that really makes the difference. Time, as I have discovered, is no excuse for not getting something done.

Angels on Earth: Inspiring Stories of Fate, Friendship, and the Power of Connections by Laura Schroff & Alex Tresniowski

From the #1 New York Times and international bestselling authors of An Invisible Thread comes a heartwarming and inspiring book about the incredible impact that acts of kindness from strangers can have on the world around us.One day in 1986, Laura Schroff, a busy ad sales executive, passed an elevenyear-old boy panhandling on the street. She stopped and offered to take him to McDonald's for lunch. 20 years later, at Laura's fiftieth birthday party, Maurice Mayzck gave a toast, thanking Laura for her act of kindness, which ended up changing the course of his life. In that toast, Maurice said that when Laura stopped on that busy street corner all those years ago, God had sent him an angel.Laura's invisible thread journey has deepened her belief that angels, divine and otherwise, are all around us. After An Invisible Thread was published in 2011, readers from around the country and world began sharing with Laura their own stories about how chance encounters with strangers have changed their lives. From a woman who saved a life simply by buying someone a book, to a financier who gave a stranger the greatest gift of all, to a teacher who chose a hug over discipline and changed a lost boy's future. The book will introduce a series of remarkable people whose invisible thread stories will move, surprise, and inspire readers. Angels on Earth sheds light on how each of us can live happier, more purposeful lives through sharing acts of kindness.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

SIGNING UP FOR MEDICARE: IMPORTANT FACTS FOR THOSE NEARING AGE 65

People who are nearing the age of 65 should begin making plans for the transition from private health care to Medicare. It is not a simple process or one that happens automatically. You have to initiate the enrollment process at a specific time or suffer a monetary penalty. It is important to understand that applying for Social Security benefits and enrolling in Medicare are two totally different things. Don't confuse your eligible age for Social Security with the eligible age for Medicare. For Medicare, it is 65; there are no variations based on your Dedicated to your family's health, wealth, and happiness, date of birth.

Can I Sign Up Whenever I Want?

If you are turning 65 and are not covered under a health insurance plan through your employer or your spouse's, you must enroll in Medicare during an initial enrollment period (IEP) that applies just to you. The period runs for a seven-month span beginning and ending on either side of your 65th birthday. The fourth month of the period is the month in which you turn 65. That is how you establish your window of opportunity. If you passed the age of 65 while covered under a plan through your or your spouse's employment, you have a special enrollment period (SEP). The SEP covers any time before the employment ends, and for eight month's thereafter. A word of caution here: employers with less than 20 workers may require employees turning 65 to enroll in Medicare and have the employer plan serve only as a backup insurer. What If I Missed The Deadline?

If you failed to enroll during your initial or special period, you must enroll in a general enrollment period (GEP) which is in effect from January 1 to March 31 of each year. In such a case, you will be charged a penalty of 10 percent of the premiums for each full 12-month period after the end of your IEP and the beginning of the GEP.

The good news for some who enroll during a GEP is that they may not have to pay any premiums for Medicare Part A coverage, so there is no penalty to be assessed. If you have contributed Medicare tax while employed for 40 quarters (10 years), you have enough credit to get Part A coverage for free. Part A covers hospital and skilled nursing facility charges. Part B, which covers doctor's services, outpatient services and medical equipment, always comes with a premium, and an enrollment penalty will be assessed as long as you are in the plan.

While the process can be complicated, these are some of the more important facts people need to know about Medicare enrollment. There are still other factors that may apply to individuals, especially anyone who is disabled and receiving Medicare benefits prior to age 65. As such, contacting the Social Security Administration (or if you need more help, contacting us) well before your 65th birthday is the smart thing to do.

JOHN L. MICEK

SERIOUSLY AND LITERALLY LISTENING TO TRUMP

During last year's presidential campaign, my old friend and colleague Salena Zito, writing in The Atlantic, made national headlines when she observed that the reporters covering thencandidate Donald Trump "[took] him literally, but not seriously," while supporters took him "seriously, but not literally."

Now that President Trump has called the news media "the enemy of the American people," is it time to take the former reality TV star both seriously and literally?

Trump's words - delivered last week via his favored medium, Twitter, were not the words of a duly elected leader of the world's strongest and most enduring democracy.

They were those of a strongman with little regard, or even knowledge, of the norms of a liberal democracy. And they came on the heels of Trump's frankly surreal, 77-minute, tongue-lashing of the press last Thursday.

It was a performance that staggered the imagination. For more than an hour and fifteen minutes, Trump scolded reporters he didn't like and heaped praise on those he did.

It was followed up by White House Chief of Staff Reince Priebus making the rounds of the Sunday chat shows, where he doubled-down on the boss's message.

It earned him a stiff rebuke from "Fox News Sunday" host Chris Wallace, who reminded Priebus of what should been long past obvious for the former Republican National Committee boss: Reporters don't work for the White House.

No president ever really gets along with the reporters who cover him. President Barack Obama's disdain for the Washington press corps was well-known.

President Nixon privately referred to the press as the enemy - but was apparently smart enough not to make such remarks in public, former Washington Post reporter Carl Bernstein told ČNN over the weekend. But still, Trump's remarks were understandable when viewed in the context of the Hollywood culture in which he is most at home. In the world of the soft-touch celebrity profile, it's not uncommon for celebs and their representatives to get a say over the time, place, setting, questions and even the final, published copy.

Trump, who benefited for years from his close relationship with the New York tabs and the celebrity press, has probably come to accept largely gushing coverage and the kid-gloves treatment as the norm, not the bizarre exception that it truly is.

The frankly aggressive and adversarial coverage Trump has received from the political press runs counter to the cosseted bubble that the president has called home for the roughly five decades he's been in the public eye. The leaks coming out of the White House and other areas of government - while a standard and badly needed feature of public affairs reporting - offend him to the core when viewed in that context. An ego that bruises at the drop of a hat and a constant - and perhaps pathological - need for affirmation doesn't help either. But while that explains Trump's skewed view on the treatment he thinks he should be receiving, it doesn't excuse it. Not by a longshot. Nor does it excuse the blatant falsehoods, distortions and fabrications that have been emanating from his White House from Day One.

Writing in the New Yorker last week, the magazine's editor, David Remnick, placed Trump in a line of authoritarian leaders, from Robespierre and Vladimir Lenin to Sisi and Mugabe on down, who branded their adversaries "enemies of the people," and used it scant justification to imprison them or send them to their deaths.

So far, Trump hasn't gone that far - at least. Now I'm not going to sit here and claim that journalists are without sin. Mistakes happen and there have unquestionably been times when we've been our own worst enemy. Trump, who is likely ignorant of the historical antecedents of his remarks (though White House adviser Steve Bannon surely is not) has played on that distrust and used it to his advantage. Polls showing lagging Congress in public trust are the unfortunate result.

Journalists, meanwhile, have to be careful not to play into Trump's hands. They have to continue to hold him accountable without morphing into the "opposition party" the administration claims them to be.

After all, no one ever said being an enemy of the state was going to be easy.

NO, OBAMA IS NOT PLOTTING A 'TREASONOUS COUP'

We're all well acquainted with the fake news phenomenon - the Trumpian sewage that's routinely pumped into the brains of the dumb and numb. But the good news is, Facebook has started to fight back, working with a coalition of fact-based media outlets.

Better late than never. The 2016 campaign was festooned with phony scoops like "Pope Francis shocks world, endorses Donald Trump for president" and "FBI agent suspected in Hillary email leaks found dead in apartment in murder-suicide" and "Hillary sold weapons to ISIS." Credulous social media users clicked and shared and were happy to get suckered.

It's no surprise that the con lives on. My new favorite bit of fakery, which has already been shared tens of thousands of times, and re-posted on dozens of websites with names like Angry Patriot and Trump Media, features this eye-candy headline:

"BREAKING. Congress Moves to STOP Obama's Treasonous Coup Attempt Against

Sigh. These people still can't quit the guy.

Last I saw, Obama was photographed on a boating vacation, wearing cool shades and flashing a free-at-last grin. He sure didn't look like somebody plotting a coup and seething with treason, but hey, maybe his vacay vibe was just part of the conspiracy. And if Congress is indeed moving to stop his coup, I can respect its apparent decision to do so quietly. Maybe that explains why not a single Republican in Congress, or Spicer or Kellyanne, has breathed a word about what Obama has afoot.

Anyway, I bring all this up because ABC News - working with Facebook - has posted a deconstruction of the fake-news story, explaining how the infauxmation process

Basically, this was the fake-news logic: Trump is plagued by government leakers; many government officials are civil servants who stay on the job from one administration to the next; some leakers might be officials carried over from the last administration; therefore, the leakers are partisan Obama loyalists; therefore, Obama is directing his loyalists; therefore, Obama is plotting a treasonous coup.

ABC News dryly concluded that, aside from the people making stuff up, "no one is alleging that former President Obama is connected to the leaks or has committed treason because of these revelations." But the most noteworthy true info comes at the bottom of the post:

"ABC News has launched 'The Real News About Fake News' powered by Facebook data in which users report questionable stories and misinformation circulating on the platform. The stories will undergo rigorous reporting to determine if the claims made are false, exaggerated or out of context. Stories that editorial partners have also debunked will then appear flagged in your News Feed."

Facebook announced this project earlier this winter. The social network had long prided itself as a neutral bulletin board, but its leaders had come to realize that allowing sewage to flow unchecked was a social negative. As Adam Mosseri, one of the Facebook veeps, said in December: "We really value giving people a choice (of information), but we also believe we need to take responsibility for the spread of fake news on our platform."

So Facebook hooked up with ABC News, the Associated Press, FactCheck.org (housed at the University of Pennsylvania), Politifact, and Snopes. Users can now flag stories they suspect to be fake, and stories that draw enough flags are typically steered to these fact-checking media sites. The Obama slime job met the specs for scrutiny. And another group called First Draft - which includes The Washington Post, Vox, and ProPublica - combats what it calls "the misinformation ecosystem."

It's nice to finally see some kind of pushback, even if these efforts don't really make a dent. The users who guzzle fake stories about Obama certainly won't accept a thumbsdown verdict from ABC News, which they probably dismiss as part of the conspiracy. No, they'd prefer to believe the lies that jibe with their Trump worship and ideological predilections; look no further than the scene Thursday morning at CPAC, the annual Conservative Political Action Conference, where a standing ovation greeted the onstage appearance of alternative-factess Kellyanne Conway.

But there's hope for the reality-based community. A new Quinnipiac poll says when Americans are asked whom they trust "to tell the truth about important issues," 52 percent choose the media, and only 37 percent tilt to Trump.

No doubt he would dismiss those stats as "fake news." I call it good news.

MAKING SENSE MICHAEL REAGAN

ROOKIES IN THE WHITE HOUSE

Major League Baseball has an annual training season in

Maybe President Trump should have gone somewhere outside of Washington to hold tryouts for a month to see who on his team was ready to play in the big leagues. At least he should have picked some veteran coaches who know how the professional Washington game is played, are loyal to him and who know how to make the White House work smoothly.

All incoming presidents, even veteran politicians, have trouble with their White House advisers and underlings at first.

But as a political outsider and a disrupter, Trump is facing more trouble than most of his predecessors.

The Democrats, their hysterical pals in the media and the permanent Washington bureaucracy are doing their best to slow him up or bring him down.

But so far Trump – the rookie manager in chief – has been his own worst enemy. He assembled a White House team made up of third-round draft picks and minor leaguers and put them on the field before he knew whether they could hit a curve or field a hard grounder.

What we're seeing in the White House - "Leakville," as I refer to it now - is a bunch of rookies trying to run the most important government operation in the world.

It should never have gotten to this level of ineptitude, President Trump is responsible for it, and only he can fix it.

A large part of his problem is that he doesn't have a chief of staff in the White House -- he has two of them, Reince Priebus and Steve Bannon.

Anyone who's ever managed a Starbucks knows when two or more people are "in charge," no one is really in charge.

And when two or three people are in charge, then no one is ultimately responsible for anything that happens and chaos and confusion run amok.

The bumbled and hasty rollout of the executive order temporarily banning immigrants from seven Muslim countries was a textbook example of what happens when no single person is in charge of the White House staff.

The case of Michael Flynn, Trump's starting National Security Adviser, was another "rookie mistake" by a staffer that should never have happened.

Flynn should have known better. He wasn't called up from the Class D Leagues. He had 30 years of exemplary military experience and had worked in the Obama administration.

What was he thinking? What made him believe he had the right to lie to the vice president – if that's what he really did?

Flynn's been cut from the team and he'll be a source of bad PR for Trump for

I'd hate to be Sean Spicer, who has to go in front of the Washington press corps and deal with the latest twists in the Flynn case or explain the White House's bungle

President Trump is doing fine by holding all those meetings with business executives and foreign leaders and issuing executive orders.

It's his rookie squad that's holding him back. They seem more interested in serving their own interests, not his.

It's now up to the president to find a way to plug up the leaks and put together a competent, loyal and trusted White House staff.

He has to work fast. The regular season is almost a month old and he still doesn't have a coaching staff or a starting lineup.

And as Manager Trump has already found out the hard way, there are no exhibition games played in the White House.
