BRAIN FIZZLES: EPISODE 5 "8-1/2"

I'm so proud of myself! Despite having zero ideas for an article I still churned out another Brain Fizzle for your weekly pleasure. After four whole months my resolution of not recycling old articles is still live. (Patting my uninspired self on the back.)

The idea for this week's piece comes from one of my favorite movies, Federico Fellini's cult classic, "8-1/2." Maybe "cult classic" isn't the right description, but then "8-1/2" defies easy categorization. "Artsy," is probably more like it.

"8-1/2" is the kind of film moody teenagers gravitate to because they feel it speaks to their inner angst. At least that was my experience when I first saw it back in high school. It's individualistic, yet universal. Primal, yet sophisticated. Unprincipled, yet moral. Essentially the human condition in a

The cinematography is great. Hopefully I don't sound like a film snob. I really don't know much about film, except that I know what I like. Movies should be like wine: we should enjoy what we enjoy without passing judgment or worrying about what Getting back to the cinematography, this is a very visually appealing film. The attached photo is my favorite shot of the main character played by Marcello Mastroianni (rabbit ears added). Is it just me, or do you sometimes feel like he looks? I read somewhere that he had little sandbags stuck under his eyes to make them look puffy and bloodshot. Ha, I'm all over that look without any enhancement necessary! But seriously, to me everything comes together in that shot. The angle, the lighting, his expression. The pathos of it all. Sheesh, I'm starting sound like snob again.

While at PCC I incorporated this picture of Mastroianni into a self portrait for an art class I was taking. They put our work up in the admissions building. Mine was right by where people lined up to wait for their forms to be processed. I'd be walking around campus and people would tell me they recognized me from their time in the line at admissions. My fifteen minutes of fame!

friends neighbors, it is indeed graduation season and Friday before last I attended a really splendid one. My grandson, Luke Matthew Simon, was graduating from the USC School of Dramatic Arts. Already an accomplished actor/dancer/singer, Luke has appeared in productions. many relatively This small graduation, compared to the mass graduation that took place earlier in the day which featured thousands of graduates all wearing cap and gown, accessorized with donuts, coffee and gum, took place in Bing Auditorium and Luke's mom, our daughter, Patti, got herself Uber-ed over there at 7 a.m. to save us all seats for the graduation which started at 11:00 a.m. We were in the second row and thrilled to be there, also thrilled that the rain which threatened all morning didn't materialize.

"Ranked as one of the top drama schools in the world and recognized as a leader in performing arts education, the USC School of Dramatic Arts nurtures artists who will lead, innovate and create the performance and storytelling of the future. Under the leadership of Dean David Bridel, the faculty and administration of the USC School of Dramatic Arts has begun to re-imagine and redefine what it means to train dramatic artists in the 21st Century without losing the rigorous foundational training that has been a hallmark of the School for over 70 years." (From the commencement program.)

Dean Bridel welcomed the graduates and their families by saying, "Thank you! Bon Voyage! Your future begins today. You will turn success into triumph!" Needless to say, there was tremendous applause here. He continued, "Thank you to the faculty who have guided you the last four years, and to the families who have supported you through them." Spirits were high, to say the least!

Two student speakers started the program: Angelica Sarkisyan (BA), told us that we need to be a good person. The most important lesson she learned was you can be a good person and help other people. And that you can give yourself permission to mess up! And to love yourself. That's pretty good advice. The other young woman who spoke, Caroline Haskins (BFA Bachelor of Fine Arts) shared that art brings light into darkness and to be ready to fuel dreams with a warrior mentality! She ended with: Class of 2019...Break a leg!! These two young women were confident, eloquent, inspirational and brief.

The main graduation speaker was Kristen Bell, currently starring in the NBC series, The Good Place, with Ted Danson. She also just finished recording the sequel to Frozen, which is scheduled to hit theaters this fall. She will also be reprising her role as the main character in Veronica Mars. She is tiny, gorgeous, funny, and the first thing she told us was that she dropped out of college. Kristen's theme was to be nice, that she is nice, and it is amazing what can happen when you're nice. She told us to listen just as fiercely as you want to be heard and that dividends of your kindness will appear exactly when you need them and to build your tribe of friends as they will keep you alive. Kristen's remarks were just what these young people...and some of us not so young people... needed to hear.

The graduates each received their diploma to thunderous applause and a brief statement written by each one, read as they walked from their seat, thanking parents, siblings, professors, friends and, in one case, "my cat, Bobby!" Balloons were released, Pomp & Circumstance played and we were so proud of Luke, pictured here with Dean Bridel.

Hoping that all the graduations that you attended were as terrific as this one was, with a great speaker who was inspirational, funny, and, best of all, brief.

Another thing I love about this movie is the dialogue. I quoted Mastroianni's line in my portrait, "I have nothing to say, but I want to say it anyway." Who knows if that translation's even true to the original Italian. But it speaks to me today just as strongly as it did when I was 18. Such a universal longing. The understanding that your experience and insight probably isn't new, exciting, or unique, but the desire to express it anyway. Maybe that's part of what makes us human. Maybe that's why I write for the paper. Till the next fizzle...

Suspect Breaks into Pasadena School with Knife

An armed suspect broke into St. Philip the Apostle School in the 1300 block of Cordova St. early Thursday morning, leaving behind a large knife. The kindergarten through eight grade private school is located across the street from Pasadena City College.

According to an email sent by Principal Jennifer Ramirez to parents, a man broke in the school by picking a lock in a girls restroom around 6 a.m.. The man ran off after an alarm went off, leaving behind a large kitchen knife in the restroom. The knife was later found by kids at the Ramirez said she initially used the school's camera system to confirm there was an intruder and called police.

"The police have reviewed the video and conducted an investigation the included dusting for fingerprints and taking evidence," she wrote. "Our security company was on campus today [Thursday] conducting a review of all exterior and interior alarms."

Ramirez also said that there was no staff or students at the school at the time.

"I want to assure you that students were never in any danger," she said. "The safety of students and staff is extremely important to us."

Ramirez also stressed to parents that there was no reason to believe the suspect hid in the girl's restroom.

At press time, Pasadena police had not released a description or images of the suspect. The did however say the investigation is ongoing.

Willard Celebrates Civic Learning Award

Willard Elementary, an International Baccalaureate school, hosted an award presentation earlier this month to celebrate its Civic Learning Learning Award of Distinction.

The Civic Learning Award presentation May 3 featured special guests including Second District Court of Appeal Presiding Justice Lee Smalley Edmon, who presented the award, L.A. County Supervisor Kathryn Barger, Pasadena Mayor Tornek, Pasadéna Terry Unified School District Superintendent Brian McDonald, and Board of Education members Elizabeth Pomeroy and Michelle Richardson Bailey.

Guests got a first-hand look at Willard Elementary's International Baccalaureate program, which emphasis civic education and had an opportunity to interact with students and teachers.

The Civic Learning Award celebrates public schools' efforts to engage students in civic learning and identifies models that can be replicated in other schools. Willard is among six schools in California to earn the Award of Distinction this year.

The Civic Learning Awards are part of Chief Justice Tani Cantil-Sakauye's Civic Learning Initiative, a broad and far-reaching effort supported by statewide partners to improve civic learning and engagement in California. Among the initiative's newest programs is "Judges in the Classroom," a pilot effort in four counties to pair judges with local educators to teach students about the judicial branch.

Free Tours Set for Open Studios Alta/Pasa/Dena

Meet neighborhood artists, come curious and leave inspired, the descriptive phrase you'll see on the Open Studios promotional materials, and it's a truism. In its sixth year, the Open Studios Tour has grown from just a few artists and three locations participating in 2013, to 70 artists at 25 locations throughout the Altadena and Pasadena areas.

Open Studios Alta/Pasa/Dena offers a rare chance to look inside a real, functioning art studio. It also affords the ability to meet the artist, and to take the opportunity to get a closeup of their work. It's a great way to get to know an artist, expand your knowledge of their work, and interact with other art admirers.

It's also a great way to introduce yourself to retailers and venues around town who offer locally-sourced art, like Hoopla! Emporium on Fair Oaks Ave., McGinty's Gallery, and the Altadena Library, both on Mariposa Street. All three locations will be open and hosting artists during the Tour.

The Open Studios Tour happens every first weekend in June. This year will be Saturday and Sunday, June 1 and 2. Opening festivities will be held Friday night at the Altadena Library, where food, live music, and a silent art auction will be held. See openstudios gallery for more information.

South Pas Film Screening: To Climb a Gold Mountain

The Library, the South Pasadena Chinese-American Club (SPCC) and the Friends of the South Pasadena Library are pleased to present a screening of the award-winning documentary To Climb A Gold Mountain: A Portrait of Struggle and Triumph in honor of Asian/ Pacific American Heritage Month.

Director Alex Azmi's moving documentary tells the stories of four women of Asian descent who lived in America from the 1850s to the present day. The women came from different backgrounds and lived dramatically different lives. Some of the women featured in the film, like Anna May Wong, have reached success and fame. Still others, like Sing Ye, who lived in the 1800s and fought for freedom, are all but forgotten. Each woman's story represents a distinct theme of struggle and triumph, and ushers in the succeeding story. Through these stories, the film tracks the progression, evolution and legacy of immigrants in this country as they integrate into the Railroad marked an inflection point in history that forever fabric of America.

Alex Azmi is an Emmy Award winning filmmaker. He is interested in documentaries and films that deal with social and human issues in the United States and around the world. His latest work, "the MAN and Machine", which is in development, explores the forces behind advancements in technology and their impact on society. ### Chu Commemorates 150th Anniversary of the Transcontinental Railroad

Contributions of Chinese Railroad Workers

May 10 marked the 150th Anniversary of the completion of the First Transcontinental Railroad, which linked the continental United States

American prosperity. The completion of the railroad would not have been possible without the labor of over 12,000 from coast to coast and ushered in a new era of Chinese railroad workers who helped to build this engineering marvel even in the face of great adversity and racial discrimination. Members of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus (CAPAC) hosted an event at the Library of Congress to honor the contributions these workers. Rep. Judy Chu (CA-27), chair of CAPAC, issued the following statement:

"150 years ago, the completion of the Transcontinental changed our nation. It brought tremendous change and growth to the United States by bridging our coasts and facilitating greater economic development and prosperity. But this engineering feat would not have possible without the invaluable contributions of the 12,000 Chinese labors who made up over 80 percent of Central Pacific Railroad workforce.

They endured treacherous conditions and faced intense racial discrimination, yet their stories are often overlooked in U.S. history books. That's why I was so pleased to host an event at the Library of Congress to highlight the contributions of these Chinese laborers and to honor their role in shaping American history. 150 years after the completion of the Transcontinental Railroad, it is more important now than ever that we continue to tell their stories and ensure these pioneers get the recognition they deserve."

BACK AT THE GREAT RACE PLACE AND RACING NEWS

By Joan Schmidt

Can you believe our Flavien Prat was back at Santa Anita the day after he won the Kentucky Derby on Country House? I caught him after Race 1 and said, "I have a card for you." He asked "Why"? LOL! I said, "Congrats on getting married, your brand new daughter, and winning the Kentucky Derby

There is so much controversy. First, Maximum Security did go into the paths of three other horses; that's why he was moved so far down in the results. However I know Luis Saez did NOT do that on purpose. Even Laffit Pincay Jr. said he agreed with the Derby decision, but had praise of Luis Saez, a very good jockey, felt it was unintentional on Luis' part, and Luis tried to pull him back. I challenge anyone to compete in a race and see what those guys have to do.

Secondly I am SICK of all the publicity about the deaths of horses at Santa Anita. Those deaths upset me. I cried when Battle of Midway was put down. And my personal opinion was racing at Santa Anita should have been halted sooner.

The NBC announcer for the Kentucky Derby infuriated me. He made such a big deal about Santa Anita as if it was the ONLY track, deaths occurred. SHORT MEMORY? A few years back, there were several equine deaths at Del Mar, so the surface was changed. I also learned from people in the horsing business that this has occurred at Gulfstream; also Arizona and other tracks, but it's kept quiet.

Laffit also said he is against 20 horses in a race and I totally agree. That's way too many. I question horses running on those muddy surfaces in torrential rain. However, I am VERY GLAD that Racing is making changes to ensure the safety of horses. Go to a barn and see how greatly loved they are by their trainers and owners. Outsiders don't realize horses are like family members to them.

This Sunday Bob and I went to Santa Anita for Mother's Day. SO great to see Evin Roman, now a Journeyman, who won the Eclipse Award as an Apprentice; Assael Espinosa, Victor's nephew; Ruben Fuentes, who's been winning a lot; and my favorite Cajun Kent Deosrmeaux, who won a great race. Also Iggy Puglisi, who keeps everyone in stitches, returned after an injury and won! Currently, it's a close race for jockey with most wins: Raffi (Bejarano) has one win more than Flavien. Looking forward to the Breeders Cup coming to Santa Anita this year!

May 16, 2019 – On March 5, 2019, the Arcadia City Council unanimously placed Measure A - a local ¾ cent sales tax measure on the June 4, 2019, All-Mail Ballot Special Municipal Election. If enacted by Arcadia voters, Measure A would provide locally-controlled funds to maintain public safety and other local services at current levels. Sponsored by the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce and hosted at Santa Anita Park, community members are invited to join us for a community forum on Measure A featuring Arcadia's City Manager Dominic Lazzaretto on Wednesday, May 22 from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Santa Anita Park, Chandelier Room, located at 285 W. Huntington Drive.

"Come learn key background information on Measure A, how it relates to LA County, and what the City would put those funds towards, if this measure were approved by voters", said City Manager Dominic Lazzaretto. "We want to make sure community members are educated on the purpose of the sales tax

This Community Forum on Measure A will be an opportunity to hear from City officials and get answers to questions related to the sales tax measure. If approved by voters, funding from Measure A can be used to maintain service priorities identified by the

- Preventing and investigating property crimes, like thefts and burglaries searchers say the chance of a crash for any reason increased 23 times when the driver is texting.Beware of distracted drivers all the time!!!Americans are dependent on their vehicles, but there's growing proof that many are not fully focused when driving. Cellphone use is causing 1.6 million crashes each year, according to the National Safety Council. The council also reported nearly 330,000 injuries occur each year from accidents caused by texting while driving and that 1 out of every 4 car accidents in the United States is caused by texting and driving. Here's another troubling finding: texting while driving diverts your eyes from the road for an average of five seconds. At 55 mph, that's enough time to cover the length of a football field blindfolded. Just ask the

It can be changing the radio station, messing with your navigation," said Chuck Wallis. Wallis said seven out of 10 cars in the shop are there because of distracted driving. The National Highway traffic Administration reports almost 3,500 Americans died in 2015 in motor vehicle crashes in which distracted drivers were involved. LOQUAT LOQUAT (Eriobotrya japonica) fornia," "Foraging California," and other books. en fresh. You can remove the seeds, and serve a bunch of the fruit with some ice cream. He also leads regular field trips to learn about the uses

If you're on the trail and you happen upon some loquat trees in fruit at the time, just stop and enjoy a few! They make a great refreshing trail snack.

The loquat, also some- Once the large seeds are removed, the flesh is times known as the Japasweet and tender and can be readily made into nese medlar, is one of jams or pie fillings. Just use a standard recipe that you already know and like for some other those fruits that seems to be everywhere, and most of it just gets eaten by fruit, like peaches, and substitute loquats for the birds or falls to the ground and rots. It's maturpeaches. You'll find that these make an excellent ing right now, all over town, and maybe in your jam or jelly.

This smallish tree – perhaps up to 15 feet tall -- produces some of the earliest fruit each spring. The plant is somewhat common in California, and fortunately, more and more people are getting to know it, and more importantly, more and more people are beginning to value this Loquat's native home is China, Japan, and North India, this evergreen's leaves are broad, and pointed at the end, averaging about 8 inches in length. Each leaf is darker green on the upper surface, and the under surface is lighter green, with a characteristic wooly surface.

The tree produces white flowers in the late autumn, and its golden-yellow fruits are often abundant on the trees. The small oblong fruits can be about two inches long, give or take. The flesh is sweet and free of fibre, and each fruit contains a few large brown seeds. The flavor is sweet, but with a slight sour tang. They're a bit addicting once you get used to them. The fruit is high in Vitamin A, dietary fibre, manganese, and potassium.

If the tree is cultivated in your yard, you can produce some bigger fruits by simply irrigating and fertilizing. If the trees are just allowed to go wild, the fruits tend to get smaller each year, though still delicious. Sometimes in our local wild areas, such as in the Arroyo Seco or along the foothill trails, you can see where someone stopped to have lunch and then spit out the brown seeds, which readily sprout.

I think loquats are great simply chilled and eat-

Sometimes you'll see loquat jam or jelly at local stores or farmers' markets. Mary Sue Eller, who was a professional cook who sold loquat jelly at the Highland Park and other farmers markets, shared with me her recipes, which is printed in my "Nuts and Berries of California" book. She starts with four cups of fresh loquats, which she washes and deseeds. She puts them into a pot with a little water, 1 to 2 cups of sugar (depending on the desired sweetness), and the juice of one lemon. She cooks it all until it gets thick, and then puts them into sterilized jars. Eller suggests that first-time canners research all the details of such canning (in a book or website) before doing this.

It's pretty easy to grow new loquat trees, and they will produce fruit in a few years. Though they're drought tolerant, they will still produce better fruit if they are watered somewhat regularly and fertilized with some regularity.

The leaves of the loquat are used in Chinese medicine to make cough syrup. The demulcent effect of the leaves soothes the respiratory and digestive systems. I've noted that there is a popular cough remedy which I've purchased in Alhambra herb shops, which contains the extract of loquat leaf as one of the main ingredients. At one of my classes, we prepared a simple infusion with only the loquat leaf. It has a mild but pleasant flavor that everyone found agreeable.

Jeff's Book Pics By Jeff Brown

THE BIOLOGY OF BELIEF 10TH ANNIVERSARY EDITION: UNLEASHING THE POWER OF CONSCIOUSNESS, MATTER & MIRACLES by Bruce H. Lipton

This 10th-anniversary edition of Bruce Lipton's best-selling book has been updated to bolster the book's central premise with the latest scientific discoveries and there have been a lot in the last decade. The Biology of Belief is a groundbreaking work in the field of new biology. Former medical school professor and research scientist Bruce H. Lipton, Ph.D., presents his experiments, and those of other leading-edge scientists, which examine in great detail the mechanisms by which cells receive and process information. The implications of this research radically change our understanding of life, showing that genes and DNA do not control our biology; instead, DNA is controlled by signals from outside the cell, including the energetic messages emanating from our positive and negative thoughts. This profoundly hopeful synthesis of the latest and best research in cell biology and quantum physics has been hailed as a major breakthrough, showing that our bodies can be changed as we retrain our thinking.

WHY LOVE MATTERS: HOW AFFECTION SHAPES A BABY'S BRAIN

by Sue Gerhardt

The book explains why loving relationships are essential to brain development in the early years, and how these early interactions can have lasting consequences for future emotional and physical health. This second edition follows on from the success of the first, updating the scientific research, covering recent findings in genetics and the mind/body connection, and including a new chapter highlighting our growing understanding of the part also played by pregnancy in shaping a baby's future emotional and physical well-being. Gerhardt focuses in particular on the wide-ranging effects of early stress on a baby or toddler's developing nervous system. When things go wrong with relationships in early life, the dependent child has to adapt; what we now know is that his or her brain adapts too. The brain's emotion and immune systems are particularly affected by early stress and can become less effective. This makes the child more vulnerable to a range of later difficulties such as depression, anti-social behavior, addictions or anorexia, as well as physical illness. Why Love Matters is an accessible, lively, account of the latest findings in neuroscience, developmental psychology and neurobiology - research which matters to us all. It is an invaluable and hugely popular guide for parents and professionals alike.

LAST BUS TO WISDOM: A NOVEL (Two Medicine Country) by Ivan Doig

The final novel from a great American storyteller.Donal Cameron is being raised by his grandmother, the cook at the legendary Double W ranch in Ivan Doig's beloved Two Medicine Country of the Montana Rockies, a landscape that gives full rein to an eleven-year-old's imagination. But when Gram has to have surgery for "female trouble" in the summer of 1951, all she can think to do is to ship Donal off to her sister in faraway Manitowoc, Wisconsin. There Donal is in for a rude surprise: Aunt Kate-bossy, opinionated, argumentative, and tyrannical—is nothing like her sister. She henpecks her good-natured husband, Herman the German, and Donal can't seem to get on her good side either. After one contretemps too many, Kate packs him back to the authorities in Montana on the next Greyhound. But as it turns out, Donal isn't traveling solo: Herman the German has decided to fly the coop with him. In the immortal American tradition, the pair light out for the territory together, meeting a classic Doigian ensemble of characters and having rollicking misadventures along the way. Charming, wise, and slyly funny, Last Bus to Wisdom is a last sweet gift from a writer whose books have bestowed untold pleasure on countless readers. The 3 reviews are from Amazon.

THE GOOD LIFE

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

JUST ASK!!

Just ask or Houston we have a problem. I think there is a gentlemen's agreement when you go out to eat, you know like unwritten rules.

Know the difference between a busboy and the server Never snap your fingers at the server

Respect the reservation time

Kids and cell phone are fine but as long as both are on mute

Don't make the server split the check 10 ways Don't blame the server for the kitchens mistake

Don't use the restaurant for your own personal supermarket

But there are two sides to every story, at least that is this writer's opinion!! One of my favorite restaurants is Houston's. It's called a steakhouse but they do a great job with just about everything on the menu, their communication skills could use a tune up. Recently I was at the aforementioned Houston's and planned for a 7 PM meal, I got there a bit early knowing that there would be a wait, see I am not sure if they take reservations or not, they have changed the policy a few times, checked in with the hostess and decided on a drink at the bar, well you also have to check in with the hostess for that as well, she granted me permission to stand at the bar, I noticed a couple leaving and thought here's my chance, bartender said did you check in? She said hold on, and my second wish was granted, I got to sit at the bar, ordered a $15 martini, the drink was just about half full and never was asked how it was or offered my change from the $20 dollar bill, 30 minutes were up and our table was ready right on time. Here's my unwritten rule in reverse, I ordered my steak medium done, and It came out charred (that's Ok) and rare, at no time was I asked how is your steak was it cooked the way you ordered it? For that matter the martini at the bar, so they just assume that everything is going great, I know there a few holes in my story. I should have spoken up!!! Just Ask!!

Listen in on more restaurant stories this Sunday Morning at 8 AM on Go Country 105

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

3 WARNING SIGNS OF A FINANCIAL SCAM

Nobody likes to admit they've fallen for a financial scam, but the fact is, it's easier than ever to get caught up in one. This is especially true in today's all-digital world, where practically every shred of data related to your personal and financial background can be found online.

While no one is forcing you to use the Internet to manage your financial accounts, purchase goods and services, or communicate with the outside world, these days it's nearly impossible to live your life without the web. This net-based existence can feel somewhat unnerving for those of us who came of age while the tech revolution was already underway, but for the elderly, who lived the vast majority of their lives offline, it can be absolutely overwhelming.

Given their lack of tech experience, coupled with the fact that many of them are undergoing varying levels of cognitive decline and sometimes live lonely, isolated lives, scammers view seniors as easy targets. And many of today's con artists are so sophisticated, even the most intelligent and educated

To protect your aging loved ones (and yourself) from such predators, it's critical to know the warning signs of financial exploitation. The following are three big red flags to watch for:

1. Unexpected requests

If a family member or friend contacts you out of the blue asking for money, especially via email or text, you should be wary. If the request comes from an unfamiliar email address or phone number, you should be extremely wary. While such requests aren't totally unheard of, never send money unless you can verify the individual's identity.

A popular con, known as the Grandparent Scam, involves someone calling and pretending to be your grandchild. The "grandchild" explains he or she is in trouble and needs money immediately. The caller then asks you to wire the money or give it to a third party, usually someone posing as a lawyer or police officer.

No matter how urgent the caller may sound, you should always verify their identity. One of the easiest ways to do this is by having the person call you back on his or her phone. Or if the individual's phone is dead or lost, you can ask them questions only the actual person would know the answer to, such as the name of their first pet. If they refuse, seem unusually aggressive, or act odd, do not send money.

2. Unsolicited money-making ventures

Whether through a savvy business deal or by winning the lottery, we all fantasize about striking it rich. And if you're retired on a fixed income, this fantasy can be all-the-more alluring. Scammers know this and will use your dreams of easy money to trick you into investing in a too-good-to-betrue venture that promises big bucks for little or no effort.

There are endless variations on this popular con, from wealthy foreign nationals needing assistance transferring money to more legitimate-sounding business deals offering huge payoffs with no risk. These messages sometimes appear as if they were sent to you accidentally, making it feel like fortune has finally favored you—just like you always dreamed it would.

But in reality, strangers don't just randomly offer other strangers incredible money-making opportunities. What kind of trustworthy business person would seek to partner with someone they've never met? And if it's such a great investment, why not recruit someone they know or simply do it themselves? Indeed, any unsolicited money-making venture you receive online from a person you don't know is almost certainly a scam.

3. Requests for personal information

Whenever someone unfamiliar asks you for personal information like a credit card number, Social Security number, or your mother's maiden name, proceed with extreme caution. Ask them why they need this information. Request they verify their identity. Enquire about alternate methods of proceeding that do not require such private information.

Reputable sources will respect your privacy and be more than willing to provide you with identity verification, or at least offer an alternate way for you to proceed without the need for such personal data. For example, if you receive an email request for your credit card number, look up the organization's phone number using a source other than what they provide in the email, and ask if you can call and give your information over the phone instead. Protect your loved ones from all possible threats By becoming familiar with how such deceptions work and knowing what to look for, you and your loved ones will be far less likely to be conned. At the same time, you should also do everything you can to safeguard your family's finances from other threats that have nothing to do with fraud. Without comprehensive estate planning, your family's wealth and assets are in real danger of being seriously depleted or lost in the event of your death or incapacity. Meet with us to learn about the best planning strategies to put in place to ensure your loved ones will be taken care of no matter

ADAPTIVE GARDENING: TIPS AND TOOLS FOR OLDER GARDENERS

Dear Savvy Senior:

Can you recommend some good tools and tips for senior gardeners? My 77-year-old mother loves to work in the garden but over the past few years has been plagued by injuries. Concerned Daughter

Dear Concerned:

Aches, pains and injuries are not uncommon among older gardeners. Because gardening is such a physical activity that often requires a lot of bending and stooping, squatting and kneeling, gripping and lifting, it can be extremely taxing on an aging body.

Back pain and knee injuries are most common among older gardeners, along with carpal tunnel syndrome and tennis elbow. To help keep your mom injury-free this summer, here are some tips and gardening equipment ideas that can make gardening a little easier.

With gardening, good form is very important as well as not overdoing any one activity. A common problem is that gardeners often kneel or squat, putting extra pressure on their knees. Then, to spare their knees, they might stand and bend over for long stretches to weed, dig and plant, straining their back and spine.

To help your mom protect her body, she needs to warm up before beginning. Start by stretching, focusing on the legs and lower back. And keep changing positions and activities. Don't spend hours weeding a flowerbed. After 15 minutes of weeding, she should stand up, stretch, and switch to another activity like pruning the bushes or just take a break.

It's also important that she recognizes her physical limitations and doesn't try to do too much all at once. And, when lifting heaver objects, she needs to remember to use her legs to preserve her back. She can do this by keeping the item close to her body and squatting to keep her back as vertical as possible.

Laborsaving Tools

The right gardening equipment can help too. instead of horizontally.

Kneeling pads can protect knees, and garden seats or stools are both back and knee savers. Lightweight garden carts can make hauling bags of mulch, dirt, plants or other heavy objects much easier. And long-handled gardening tools can help ease the strain on the back by keeping your mom in a standing upright position versus bent over. There are also ergonomic gardening tools with fatter handles and other design features that can make lawn and garden activities a little easier.

Easier Watering

The chore of carrying water or handling a heavy, awkward hose can also be difficult for older gardeners. Some helpful options include lightweight fabric hoses instead of heavy rubber hoses; soaker or drip hoses that can be snaked throughout the garden; thin coil hoses that can be used on the patio or small areas; a hose caddy and reel for easier hose transport around the yard; and a self-winding hose chest that puts the hose up automatically. There are also a variety of ergonomic watering wands that are lightweight, easy to grip, and reach those hard to-get-to plants.

To find ergonomic gardening tools and the recommended watering aids, check with local retail stores that sell lawn and garden supplies or try online retailers like Gardeners.com or RadiusGar-

Container Gardening

If your mom's backyard garden has become too much for her to handle, she should consider elevated garden beds or container gardening - using big pots, window boxes, hanging baskets, barrels or tub planters. This is a much easier way to garden because it eliminates much of the bend and strain of gardening but still gives her the pleasure of making things grow. Trellises are another nice option that would allow her to garden vertically

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

UNDERSTANDING THE GRANDPA RULES

As circumstance would have it, and I like to give circumstances due credit, I was visiting my grandchildren without the Gracious

Mistress of the Parsonage.

Normally, if there is such a status, my wife travels with me when we visit the grandchildren. However, when she is along I do not have a chance. I will not say that she hogs the grandchildren, she does, I just will not say so. As a husband, I know when to speak my mind and when to mind my speaking. The inexperienced husband does not know the difference and pays for it.

With the opportunity before me to go solo with the grandchildren, I determined to make the best of it. I never know when this kind of a situation will repeat itself. When my wife is with me, she always holds the reins, but now I have nobody to curtail my visit with the grandchildren. I am a freelance grandpa.

What many people may not know are the rules governing the successful grandfather. Most people do not know these rules because the most prominent grandparent is usually the grandmother. I'm not complaining, just explaining. Somebody needs to explain this and the sooner the grandfather knows and understands these rules the sooner he can enjoy exploiting his role as grandpa.

The first rule that should be understood is simply this: whatever makes the grandchildren happy makes the grandfather happy. This brings out the unselfish nature of grandfatherhood. It is a wise, not to mention a happy, grandfather who invests his resources in making the grandchildren happy, whatever it takes. I say invest because there are marvelous dividends to be reaped.

This is perhaps the greatest burden the grand-father has to shoulder. Everybody knows how difficult it is to make and keep the children happy. In addition, during the grandfather's visit it should be one long happy adventure.

Another rule associated with grandfathers is rather basic. Jellybeans ARE fruit. Anybody with any kind of common sense can see the different colors of jellybeans and understand that they represent fruit. It is the dutiful responsibility of a grandfather to have an endless supply of jellybeans on his person at all times. After all, children do need their fruit.

While on the subject of food, another rule has to do with vegetables. Every grandfather knows that vegetables are not all that grandmothers say they are. And broccoli...is absolutely forbidden when grandpa is at the table. Another important aspect of eating at the table is, cleaning up everything on your plate is not

Also, when grandpa is at the table the order of the dinner is drastically changed. For example, the dessert should be eaten first because of enough room for the dessert at the end of the ship.com.

When going out to a restaurant together for a meal there is another rule that is most crucial. This is something dear to my heart and something I wish to pass on to my grandchildren. Simply put, it is this, a straw has many functions. And the beautiful thing about a straw is it comes with its own supply of ammunition. There are many wonderful things to be done with a "loaded straw."

Another grandpa rule is that noise is welcome and since grandpa is a little hard of hearing, the louder the better. A grandchild yelling like a wild banshee is the music of the gods. And the most important part of this music is all the grandchildren should be yelling at the same time. This idea of taking turns is something that only grandmothers think up.

With the children's health in mind, this next rule is crucial. Jumping on the furniture is good exercise, especially when grandpa hits the ceiling with his head. And because of the great deal of laughter involved in such exercise, it adds to their health and longevity. I read somewhere where laughter adds to your life. Whether it is true or not is immaterial, the fact is children need to laugh and laugh a lot. Grandmothers do not understand.

Then, as long as grandpa is staying overnight, bedtime is merely a goal. This idea of having an exact bedtime is not healthy, especially when grandpa is visiting. Bedtime should be a negotiable commodity, not something that is an exact science. What does science have to do with going to bed at night? Leave science at school where it belongs.

There is one last rule that I need to mention. Grandpa's rules trump everyone else's rules... except grandma's, which is why grandpa needs to visit the grandchildren by himself

Understanding the rules enables everybody to enjoy the time together. Without rules, there would be chaos. With grandpa's rules, the chaos is a marvelous harmony of joy, excitement and fun. Every grandchild needs a grandpa who understands the grandpa rules and who has the opportunity to exploit those rules.

There is one rulebook that I go by implicitly. That is the Bible. It is the most profitable book I have ever discovered. "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (2 Timothy 3:16-17).

When you know the rules of life, it becomes a wonderful and exciting adventure.

'DO OVER' PROMS PURSUE PERPETUAL ADOLESCENCE TOM PURCELL

promenade concert.

Prom season is upon us. We all know what that means: More American adults are doing their proms all over again.

A New York Times headline about a growing number of adults says they are taking "A Second Shot to Have the Best Night of their Lives."

And carry on like a bunch of retrograde adolescents.

The modern prom, reports Slate, "may be traced to the Ivy League and the annual tradition of a 'presentation week,' during which formal dress and dancing accompanied a

Not content with only the well-to-do experiencing the awkwardness and misery of the prom, high schools across America embraced it, particularly after World War II. Now the prom is a rite of passage for American teens everywhere, with many blowing thousands of dollars on their big nights.

But I certainly wouldn't want to do my prom over.

I didn't know my date very well. She was in my photography class, very pretty and, more importantly, still available.

When she agreed to go with me, she greatly disrupted the Bethel Park High School prom-date pecking order. Whereas my date greatly raised my social status - even my friends and family were shocked she'd go with me - I lowered hers. She was awfully sore about it.

"I heard about you," she told me at our pre-prom date. "A regular class clown! You better not show up in a limo, wear a top hat or cane or do anything else to embarrass me!"That set the tone for an incredibly unpleasant weekend.

We got lost on the way to the prom, lost on the way to my friend Cook's cabin in Ohio and lost on the way home. My first foray into the adult world was rough, to be sure - a precursor, regrettably, of many more unpleasant adult experiences to come.

Similarly awkward prom experiences may motivate the growing number of adults trying to "get it right" during a second round.

But there are no "do overs" in life. Didn't novelist Thomas Wolfe make it clear that we "can't go home again"? The prom is supposed to be a teen's first foray into the adult world, not an adult's eager return to adolescence.

That's not stopping ever more "adults" from trying. Too many are not just doing their proms over, they're doing summer camps over, too - another hot trend.

To be sure, a growing desire for perpetual adolescence among today's "adults" is revealing itself all over the place - from delaying moving out of their parents' homes to delaying marriage and parenthood. That same desire leads Hollywood to keep recycling favorite movies and TV shows from their adolescence.

Look, if you had an unpleasant prom experience when you were 18, as I did, those

I wrote an earlier, light-hearted newspaper column about my experience. It was published all over the country.

After that piece ran, I bumped into my old prom date at the grocery store. She still looked great, but, boy, she was really sore now.

It turns out her husband was so delighted by her rare rude behavior - so delighted, for once, that she, not he, was the one deserving a lecture - he carries the column around in his wallet, showing it enthusiastically to total strangers.

The joy I get from that story almost makes my lousy prom experience worthwhile - but certainly not enough to make me want to do the prom all over again.

CASE AWAY FROM OUTLAWING ABORTION

WE'RE ONE SUPREME COURT

Anyone who still assumes that legal abortion is here to stay, and look at what's happening right now in red America.

Indeed, to best understand Alabama's passage of a bill outlawing virtually all abortions (even in cases of rape and incest), and Georgia's passage last week of a bill outlawing virtually all abortions at six weeks (before most women even know they're pregnant), and the recent passage of similar six-week bans in Ohio, Mississippi, and Kentucky (even though Roe says that most abortions are legal up to 24 weeks), we need only reference the words of the current president. The same guy who used to give money to Planned Parenthood.

On the 2016 campaign trail, Trump morphed into an anti-abortion zealot. During a televised event in March of that year, when asked how he would ban abortion, Trump replied: "You'll go back to a position like they had where people go to illegal places. But you have to ban it. There has to be some form of punishment (for doctors).'

A ban that would force women to "go back" to back-alley illegal abortions? No wonder the religious right got so excited. Trump promised that, if elected, he'd remake the Supreme Court and ensure that Roe was erased. During an autumn debate, he vowed that his conservative appointees would overturn the 1973 ruling that gives women the right to control their bodies. In his words, "it will happen, automatically.'

Duly inspired, the GOP's evangelical base suppressed its qualms about Trump's amoral character and forged a marriage of convenience. It delivered landslide support - favoring him over Hillary Clinton by 81 to 16 percent, the widest margin of any 2016 voting constituency.

And today, duly encouraged by the ascent of Supreme Court justices Neil Gorsuch and Brett Kavanaugh, conservative allies in various red-state legislatures are concocting draconian anti-abortion laws that are blatantly unconstitutional and will likely be tied up in litigation limbo. But that's precisely what they want, because they're playing a long game. As one key Alabama sponsor says, "What I'm trying to do here is get this case in front of the Supreme Court so Roe v. Wade can be overturned ... This is the way we get where we want to get eventually."

The days of incrementally undermining Roe at the margins - with state laws that require waiting periods, anti-abortion "counseling," various costly regulations that are impossible to meet - are decidedly over. Republicans now believe they finally have five high court votes to kill Roe entirely, thanks to Trump, and they're hoping that their new frontal attacks on abortion will wend their way to the bench for an historic decision. Their strategy may not necessarily work. Linda Greenhouse, a Yale Law lecturer who covered the court for decades as a journalist, acknowledges that the anti-abortion extremism currently being unleashed in red states is "shockingly aggressive (and) purport to take us back to the pre-Roe regime where abortion was criminal." But Greenhouse also thinks the new laws in Alabama, Georgia, Ohio, Mississippi and Kentucky are too extreme for John Roberts' majority coterie, and believes the court will simply continue to whittle away at Roe.

"If Roe finally falls, it'll fall with a little push of a pinkie, rather than a frontal assault," Greenhouse said.

Perhaps. But it's clear that the anti-abortion forces, with Washington winds at their back, have all the momentum - and there's a lesson in that for pro-Roe liberals and Democrats, a lesson that never seems to be learned.

Republicans and their religious right allies don't care what the polls say (according to the Pew Research Center, 58 percent of Americans want abortion to be legal in all or most cases, while only 37 percent say otherwise). Instead, they simply act on their convictions. They plan for the long haul and they execute that plan. They forged a transactional pact with Trump because they prioritized the importance of the Supreme Court.

Liberals and Democrats have never prioritized the Supreme Court. One might've assumed that the Democratic base would be ginned up about the court's future composition - given the fact that Senate GOP leader Mitch McConnell spent most of 2016 burying President Obama's nomination of Merrick Garland - but nope.

So Democrats - and the majority of women who typically vote for Democrats - are now suffering the consequences. The protections for women, enshrined in Roe 46 years ago, now hang in the balance. In Linda Greenhouse's words, "It's all about the dignity and agency of the female half of the population. And that's what's at stake.
